

Web Engineering @ ncm.at

Salzburg. The student August Golser of the UAS at Hagenberg completed a 15-week practical course at the internet agency ncm.at in Salzburg and was a valuable member of the NCM team because of his reliable and exact working method.

Mr. Golser was predominantly dealing with the range of web design & producing and the tasks ranged from smaller maintenance and optimization work up to the HTML conversion of whole web projects. Fast learning of the site structure and the template system used by ncm.at was no big deal for the trainee who was already experienced within the range of web design. Quite often the student could also prove his specialized knowledge which he acquired in Hagenberg—for example by dressing of video sequences for the use on the internet.

In principle, August was responsible for the tasks which were assigned to him alone. But he could come up with questions to his colleagues and discuss the proceeding which he has chosen at any time. Therefore the student could still further extend his know-how within the range of web design and gain many experiences which also had an impact into his term paper. This paper with the title „successful web engineering“ was written parallel to the professional practical training. More information can be found at his homepage at work.creativeweb.at.

During the entire practical course the working atmosphere was very cooperative and pleasant. Also the agency was very satisfied with the student achievement.

Regarding to Mr. Greisberger, project manager of NCM: „Mr. Golser has become acquainted with the tasks quickly and has very well converted his theoretical specialized knowledge into the practice. Beside some smaller projects, Mr. Golser was considerably involved in the internationalization of www.logoclic.de. He handled upcoming work with a lot of commitment, pleasure and care.“
